Wagram and Sofferino.

It is well said by the Albany Evening Journal, that the battle of Solverino close resembles that of WAGRAM. There are several striking coincidences in the two fights. In both, the French and the Austrians were the main opposing forces. In both, the long chase before he gets sight of us. French were led by a Naponeon. In both, the Austrians undertook to envelop the French, and while their right and left wings gained ground to the front, their centre was pierced by the impetuous assault of the French, and the victory thereby determined.

At Wagram, this service was performed by Marshal MacDonald, who led the terrible charge of the Imperial Guard. At Solferino, it was General Nell, who did the work, and for doing it, was made a Marshal of France. The two heroes of Magenta and Solferino. McManon and NEIL, are of Irish descent: while the hero of Wagram, MACDONALD, had Scotch blood in his veins. But in all three | that on receipt of the news of the massacre at instances, the masses of the victorious col- | Perugia by the Pope's Swisstroops, the Swiss

WHEN HOMICIBE BY A POLICEMAN IS Tust and a tre -The case of noliceman SAM-UEL H. CUNNINGHAM, in Philadelphia, has just been decided by Judge Allison. The ruling of the court in this case is important. Cunningham, a member of the police force of Philapelphia, was detailed on the 28th of April last to arrest one JAMES Mc-CRORY, the keeper of a cigar store on Seventeenth street. McCnony refused to submit to the arrest, picked up a knife, and retreated towards a rear door, closely followed by Cux-MINGHAM, who called upon him to surrender, and on his failing to do so, drew his revolver, fired, and killed him. Having been arrested on a charge of murder, Cunningham's trial took place last week. Judge Allison charged the jury that, if they believed the prisoner had, under the circumstances, a well grounded apprehension that the next step taken by the deceased would be fatal to himself, the law gave him the right to take

The rights of a policeman under such circumstances were further defined by the court

if, as an officer, charged with the duty of arresting McGrory, he attempted to make that arrest, and McGrory attempted to escape by the back passage, he was right in attempting to head him off. That would not tempting to head him off. That would have only be justifiable, but it was his duty. It is the duty of an officer to face danger, and he is not bound to retreat when in the performance of his duty. According to the duty taken upon himself he was bound to endeavor to make the arrest, and he was bound to go forward and not retreat, and if it became necessary for him to use his pistol in the defence of his life, while in the discharge of his duty, it would be justifiable."

Under these circumstances Cunningham was acquitted. GOOD FOR ITS FACE OSLY .-- The impres sion generally obtained that the sale of a ticket by a Rail Road Company obliges that road to carry the purchaser any time he may choose to go, regardless of any limitation expressed on the face of the ticket itself, and this belief has led to a great deal of speculation in Railroad tickets at times when the war of competition had reduced prices below the usual standard. In two recent cases that have come up in the Courts of New York, all fernor decisions which were in conformity with this idea were overruled, it being justly beld that the Rail Road ticket evidences the contract between the great test and the reduced the superior orders of Bavaria.

Solferino is a little village eighteen miles from Mantua, which was the scene of a view tory by a French over an Anstrian corps in 1796, previous to the seige of Mantua by the first Napoleon. Napoleon ever mindful to link his own career with the glories of the first Empire, notwithstanding that the Austrians will persist in calling the last engagement the battle of the Mincio, he, as the victor, has christened it the Battle of Solferino, and as such we doubt not, it will be known to history.

The Constitution of this morning contains a copy of a despatch from the state department, recently sent to our minister at Berlin, on the subject of naturalization. The case is that of a naturalized citizen, and a mative of Hanover, and who, when he left his native country, was neither in actual service in the Hanover army, or had been dratted to service in it, but who has, upon his return to Hanover, been deprived of his liberty and compelled to perform military service. The President and Cabinet concur in the views expressed taking the ground that the moment a foreigner becomes naturalized his allegiance to his native country is severed. bis native country is severed. to his native country is severed.

He is no more responsible for anything he may say or do, after assuming his new character, than if he had been born in the United States. Should he return to his native coun-

By an arrival from the mines last night, the following details are furnished: Prospecting has been prosecuted at a considerable distance south of the present diggings, resulting in indications equal to any already discovered. Gold beds had been struck seven miles below Jackson, on Clear Creek. Rich discoveries were also reported near Boulder City. Building was vigorously prosecuted at Denver City, and the population was steadily augmenting, creating an increased demand for provisions. All indications point to the re-establishment of confidence as to the permanency and development of the Kansas gold mines. Shipments of quartz machinery, lately made from here, when put into operation will more fully test the value of gold bearing quartz discoveries.

The Secretary of the Treasury has decided that in consequence of the invalidity of the title, or the impossibility of the American Philographical Society to fully convey in feesingle to the United States, the lots for the erection, in Philadelphia, of a Custom House and Post Office, it will require further legislation of Congress before the buildings can be proceeded with. The order for a sale of the Bank of Pennsylvania property will, therefore, for the present, be withdrawn, the commission, consisting of the above named Cabinet officer, preferring to refer the whole matter to the judgment and consideration of the next Congress.

The Battle of Salfering.

We publish in full, this morning, the graphic account of the Battle of Solferino. Mr. H. J. RAYMOND, editor of the New York Temez, of which the telegraph, a day or two since, furnished us an abstract. It appears that there were but three American eye-witnesses of this great fight, and Mr. Rav-MOND was one of them. His companion, " MALAKOFF," of the New York Times, also sends some vivid sketches of the battle-field, during and after the fight. He estimates the French loss at 25,000, and that of the Austrians at considerably more. Both Mr. RAY-MOND and "MALAKOFF" speak of the result a a brilliant victory for the French army, and a disastrous deteat for the Austrians.

Latitudes Alter Offences.

The Washington Constitution is very much offended because, as it alleges, Mr. GEORGE SUMBER, in his Fourth of July oration at Boston, "entertained his audience with the slavery question, the fired Scott decision, &c., &c., and thought it not unbecoming the day, the occasion, and an assemblage of ladies and centlemen of the cultivated and refined metropolis of New England, to stigmatize the judicial opinion of the venerable and beloved Chief Justice of the United States as the demagogical harangue of Mr. Taney!

On the very same day, Mr. R. B. RHETT, a supporter of Mr. BUCHANAN at the last Presidential election, delivered an oration at Grahamville, S. C., in which he not only entertained his audience with the Slavery question," almost exclusively, but openly Steam on Common Reads.

The success attending the undertaking of Messrs. LEE & LARNED, in running their self-propelling steam fire-engine, from Jersey City. Philadelphia, affords a reasonable pre sumption that it will not be many years besupercede those drawn by horses. We find condition of the bridges upon the ordinary reads was too untrustworthy for so great a weight—12,000 lbs with all the find, water, and passengers which accompanied it. At Bristol, however, the engine was put upon its own resources, and with nine possengers. Those who were more severely injured rode Those who were more severely injured rode upon donkeys or in earls,—and a few wore carded upon donkeys or in earls,—and a few wore carded upon donkeys or in earls,—and a few wore carded upon donkeys or in earls,—and a few wore carded upon donkeys or in earls,—and a few wore carded upon donkeys or in earls,—and a few wore donkeys or in earls,—and nearly all I saw carded in that way were so badly wounded that their recovery is sourcely possible. One had both his legs crushed by a camon ball. Another had recoved a ball in his thigh, and was eridently suffering the most intense agony. Many of those whose wounds were in their legs were seated in chairs swung across a donkey—one being upon each side. Several of those who were thus carded, and were supported by soldiers walking by their side, were apparently unconscious, and seemed to be dying.

Then would come carts, large and small, carrying three, five, and some of them ten or rying three, five, and some of them ten or the few wore. only unconscious, and seemed to be dying. Then would come carts, large and small, carrying three, five, and some of them ten or fitteen each. A steady stream of these glantity victims of the battle of the day poured through the town. I stood in the crowd by the side of them as the sad procession passed along, and watched it at this point for over an hour. It was not interrupted for a moment,—except now and then by a crowd of prisoners,—and it continued thus from about ten in the morning, when it began to flow, until I beft the street, long after dark. Every church, every large hall, every private house in the fown has been taken for the service of the wounded. Those whose injuries are slight, after having them dressed, pass at once into the ranks, and mingle with their comrades. I looked into the church as I passed by. All the seats, railings, xe., had been removed,—mattrasses of lary had been spread upon the floor, and were completely filled with the wounded men, in every stage of suffering and of peril, lying side by side. The surgeons were dressing their women were giving them when and otherwise ministering to their comfort;—but morning, I am sure, will dawn upon a large proportion of them relieved forever from their pain. If anything can be more horrible than a soldier's life, it errainly is a soldier sdeath.

Nanoleon's Personal Peculiarities. Blackwood's Magazine for June gives

Blackwood's Magazine for June gives some remarks on the personal characteristics of Napoleon III:

He has gained friends as well as enemies by one most extraordinary faculty that he possessus—that of holding his tongue, and of doing so in the company of the most loquacious people in the world. A perfectly undernonstrative man, some Frenchmen respect him for it, while others fear him, others hate him because he will not take them into his counsels; and many Englishem, again, like him because he will not take them into his counsels; and many respects very like an Englishman. He is cold and reserved in public demeanor; more cordial, say his friends, when seen in privato. Certainly he does not "wear his heart upon his sleeve for daws to peak at?" He listens to all that is said to him, and then takes his own course. He consults everybody and follows his own advice.

Again he has a good seat on horseback—of the Englishmen dislike him either because they ride hadly themselves, or because, not ing able to keep their own counsel, they hate a close character. Such cause, or causes of no great weight, are perhaps more nearly the true causes of his unpopularity in England than any commonplace notions of his being the destroyer of the liberties of France. He had equally destroyed the liberties of France.

had equally destroyed the liberties of France when he made his triumphant entry into when he made his triumphant entry into London.

The English press, at least, in some of its leading organs, has undergone many phases of opinion concerning him; and he complained in his letter to Sir Francis Head, of this conduct of the English press, by that very complaint showing that he has some regard for public opinion in England. If we venture ourselves to express an opinion regarding his character, we put it forth in all modesty, and wish it to be understood in as vague and general sense as possible, feeling ourselves in wish it to be understood in as vague and gentreation, particularly as the change of life.
